The “Council”, as we are known in the community, is committed to creating better lives for children and adults with developmental disabilities.

As an independent state agency led by 31 members appointed by the Governor, the Council should reflect the geographic and ethnic diversity of California. The Council promotes independent and productive lives by influencing public policy in areas such as education, employment, housing, inclusion and self-determination.

You have two opportunities — be on the Council itself, or on one of its 12 regional advisory committees.

If you are a person with a developmental disability or family member ready to change lives by improving the disabilities system, contact us for more information or complete the Outreach Application by going to: <http://goo.gl/forms/XeZDWIZWRa>

Why Join the Council?

- Because you believe all children should have equal access to the best education possible
- Because you believe that everyone should have the power to determine their own lives
- Because you believe in the equality and inclusion of people with developmental disabilities
- Because you believe that you can be a part of the change to improve the lives of people with developmental disabilities and their families
